The history of banking began with the first prototype banks which were the merchants of the world, who gave grain loans to farmers and traders who carried goods between cities. This was around 2000 BCE in Assyria, India and Sumeria. Later, in ancient Greece and during the Roman Empire, lenders based in temples gave loans, while accepting deposits and performing the change of money.

An important issue related to cost is determining the primary beneficiary of a technology that can lead to better care. Many people now believe that much of the financial benefit from using an EHR goes to health plans, not physicians (Goldsmith, Blumenthal, and Rishel 2003). Health plans have a strong interest in reducing the number—and thus ...
